To whomsoever it may concern,

It is with great pride that I write to recommend Omisaa Bansal, an exceptional student who has made an unforgettable impact on our organization, TaxCity—a platform dedicated to making tax and financial literacy accessible to students through interactive board and video games.

Omisaa is one of those rare interns who not only contributed significantly to the growth of our initiative but also stood by us through thick and thin. Her kindness, commitment, and unwavering enthusiasm brought energy and support to our organisation. She was also appointed as Vice President Taxation and Finance.

I first met Omisaa at a CBSE Regional Science Exhibition and was mesmerised by her devotion to her project. Due to a communication gap, her team wasn't informed about the exhibition dates in time. Yet, despite the pressure of the exhibition clashing with her Grade 10 pre-boards, she managed to prepare and present a powerful project with her team. Although they didn't win, her resilience left a lasting impression on me. At the time, TaxCity was merely an idea, and I knew instantly that people like Omisaa were exactly who I needed to bring it to life. She was one of the first interns I hired—and I've never once regretted that decision.

Omisaa was always hard working and consistently met deadlines, no matter how packed her schedule was. As a core member of both her school's theatre group and social service club, she juggled rehearsals, events, and outreach programs alongside her responsibilities at TaxCity. Yet, she never said no to a task, demonstrating incredible time management and a rare ability to multitask.

I have no doubt that Omisaa will bring her boundless curiosity, leadership, and intellect to your university. She's a student who not only seeks out challenges but thrives on them. It's been an honor to watch her grow, and I'm confident she will make an equally profound impact on your academic community.

Best Wishes,

For and on behalf of
